HIGH SCHOOL

FOREWORD

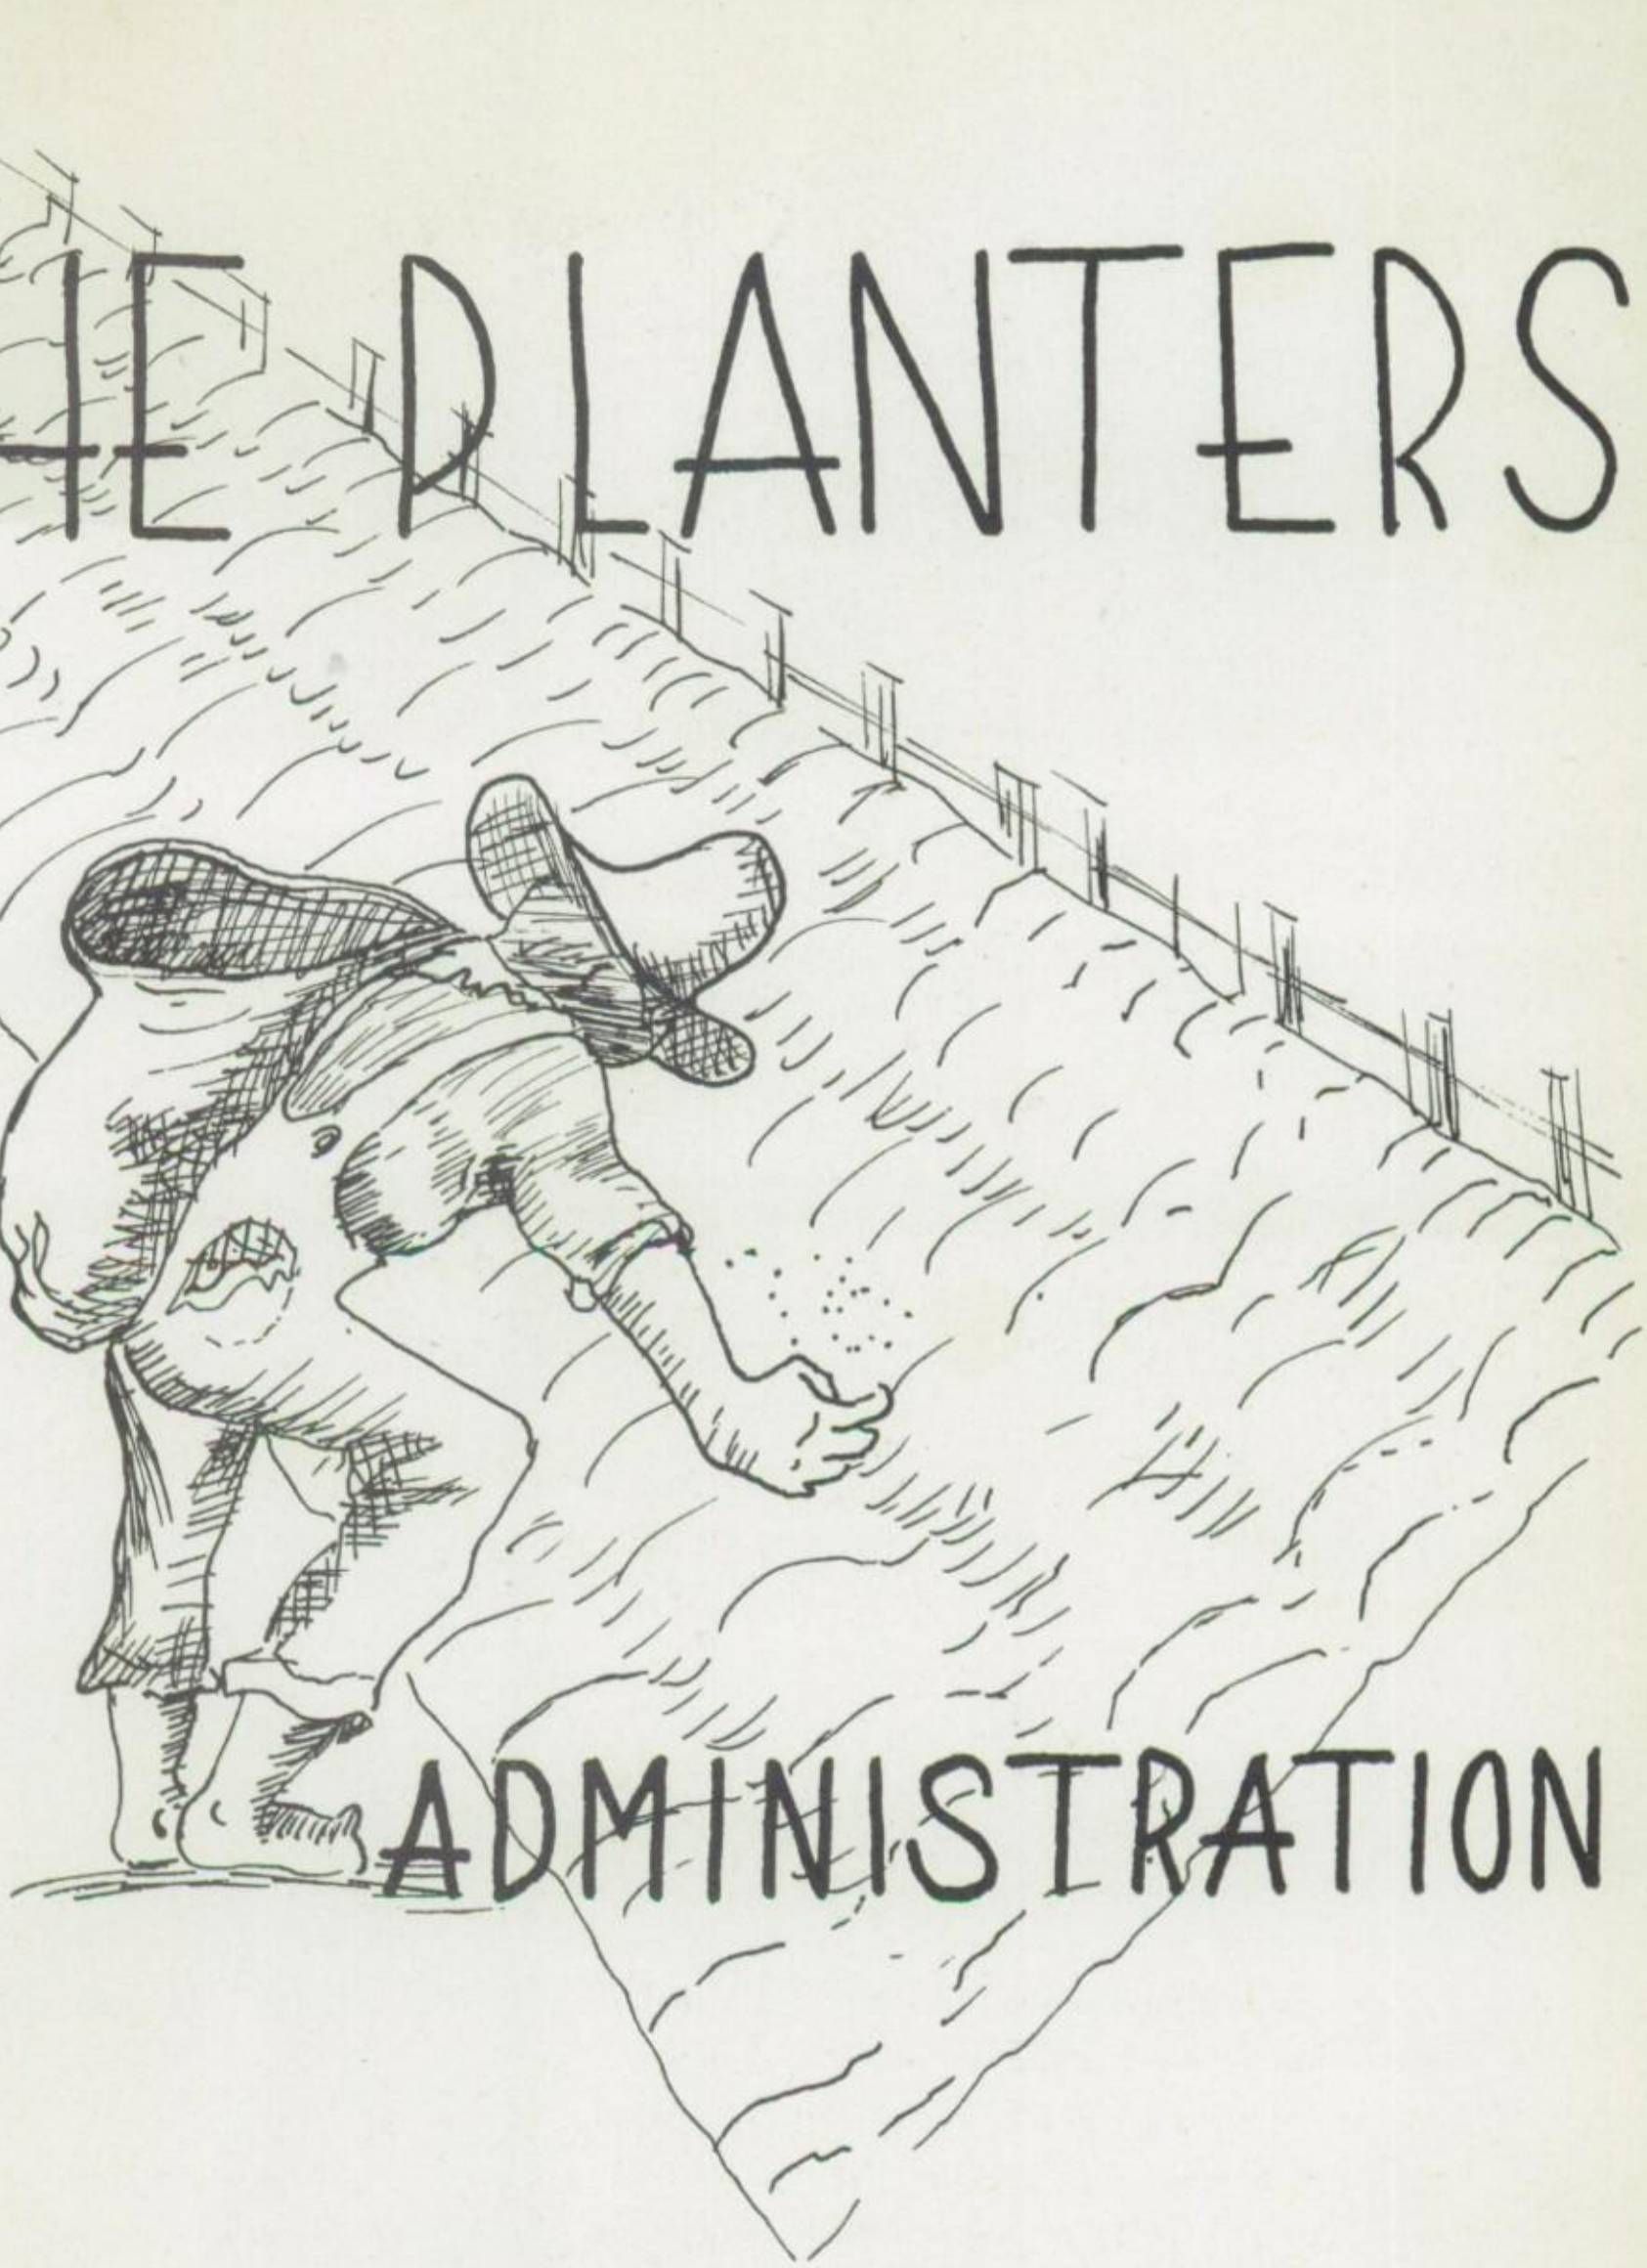
As a seedling must be planted in the rich earth, nurtured, and cultivated, until finally the ripened crop is harvested, so has our educational system nourished our growth through its immaturity to this gateway. For this reason we, the class of 1954, have chosen the farm theme for our volume of the Fawn.

If there were prizes awarded to advisers, in our judgement, this individual would certainly receive the blue ribbon.

As a permanent reminder of our sincere love and respect for her, as our teacher and friend, director of our Junior and Senior plays, and one who has willingly devoted her time to helping with our yearbook, we, the Senior Class of Nineteen Hundred and Fifty-Four, dedicate this, the second volume of the Fawn to

MISS FLORENCE L. SEAKS

THE PLANTERS



ADMINISTRATION

Proper preparation for the crop is provided by our administrators.

TO THE GRADUATING CLASS OF 1954:

Your graduation day marks an important milestone on your pathway of life. As you enter into the productive phase of your life, you find before you the greatest opportunities and the gravest responsibilities of any period of recorded history.

Technical advance has been so swift that one's youthful dreams may become realities within a decade. For those of you with courage, imagination, and fortitude, therein lies your opportunity and challenge.

A world uneasy, torn by ideological strife, will be made a world secure by your efforts and by your leadership. Therein lie your responsibilities.

As you go forth into this troubled world, may you be stimulated by the challenges and sobered by the responsibilites of life. And, above all, find happiness in those things around you.

Yours very sincerely,

JOSEPH R. WILSON
Supervising Principal

FARM MANAGERS

TO THE GRADUATING CLASS OF 1954:

I wish to express my congratulations to you for completing this one important phase of your education, graduation from Kennard-Dale High School. I am proud to have had a part in your educational growth and wish you success in the tasks that lie ahead.

Success in life, however, is not assured by graduation from high school for it is only a foundation upon which to build. Your education will continue as long as you live and your life's success is dependent upon how well you use the many opportunities that are available.

I urge you to continue your education with determination and purpose, whether it be formally or informally, for as you grow in mental stature, in sound moral principles, and in broader abilities, so then can you better serve your fellowmen and your community.

Yours very sincerely,

ELDON S. WEBB
Assistant Administrator

The baseball prospects at Kennard-Dale this year are very uncertain. Since we did not have this sport the past year, little is known as to what we will need to have a successful team.

At a meeting held to determine the number of candidates who will answer the call at the first practice, more than fifty boys attended. Of course they will be inexperienced and new to the game but with work and experience they will probably round into a scrappy, hustling ball team.

This will be a year for building and setting the stage for future years. We only hope that we can provide good competition for our opponents and in the process acquire the experience which is lacking in our team this year.

First rate advice?

Signs of Spring.

RETIRING VARSITY PLAYERS

The time has come to reap our crop of thanks to our retiring lettermen. They have been good players in our field of sports, as they played fairly, honestly, and with a good attitude toward sportsmanship. Victories weren't harvested each time, but the by-products, co-operation and teamwork, were most profitable.

FAREWELL

Dear Ken-nard Dale we bid you a-dieu, With all our friend-ships old and new. With mem-'ries sweet, and with mem-'ries true. Of the joys we have known, and the years that have flown, We say Fare-well to you.

"The Fawn" is the result of much work and many ideas of the staff and adviser. The staff attempted to present in pictures the life, activities, and people that are connected with Kennard-Dale.

We, the staff of the 1954 Fawn, wish to thank all those who helped us to make this yearbook possible. We hope those people will cooperate and support the future yearbook as they have for this one.

If possible, patronize those who have placed "ads" in our yearbook. Much patronage is due to them. We, also, wish to thank the patrons.

We wish to express our gratitude to Lorings Studios and also to Mr. Pucino, the photographer, who took many of the pictures for us. The candid shots were taken by students and Mr. Cressler. We wish to thank Mr. Prizer for the use of his airplane in taking the aerial picture of the school.

Mr. Webb, Mr. Wilson, and the faculty cooperated with us in many ways by excusing staff members from classes to work on the book.

Mr. Hoke, the adviser of the Fawn, worked with the staff many hours compiling this yearbook.

The Art Department of Kennard-Dale deserves much praise and many thanks. Miss Oermann, the Art teacher did much in supervising the art work.

We wish to express our deep appreciation to Miss Seaks for proof reading the copies for our yearbook.

The U. S. Soil Conservation group gave the school four farm pictures for the panoramic view.

Sincere thanks,

The Staff of 1954 Fawn
